

MUTINY, SAYS CAPTAIN; GRUB'S BAD, SAY CREW; POLICE ARE NEUTRAL

Master of Bark Gunderson
Says Three of Men Threatened His Life.

When the four-masted bark Maahona, seventy-five days out of Buenos Ayres with a cargo of linseed oil, was boarded by the doctor at Quarantine to-day the crew were all huddled forward and the captain wore a worried look. He told the doctor that three of his men had stirred up a mutiny and that he wanted police protection.

The bark dropped anchor at Stapleton, and two policemen went aboard from their launch and asked what was wrong. Capt. Gunderson led them to his cabin and presented them to his daughter Alvida, who is young, tall and fair. She had not been molested, the skipper said, but the three bad men had bullied him and Mate Dobson and Cook Ernest Fotol all the way from Buenos Ayres. The twenty-four members of the crew gathered around the bitts forward and growled in low, tense tones, but did not approach.

The police said it was no case for them, even when the skipper tremblingly declared that the mutineers had threatened to cut out his digestive tract and to treat his mate and his cook in the same way. So the captain and his daughter went ashore in the police launch to find a magistrate or a consul or some one who would do something.

The twenty-four men for'ard looked hungry but not truculent when a reporter for The Evening World went among them. Here is what they said: "The whole trouble is that we had nothing but mouldy beans and maggoty hardtack to eat and not enough of that. We asked the captain, most respectful, to give us better grub, but he said: 'It's plenty good enough for you, you beachcombing swine'—asking your pardon for it, but them was his very words."

"Here, you landlubber, get to off this ship!" These words were uttered by Mate Dobson, who shook his head and his fist as he approached the visitor. The latter went. Up to a late hour there had been no arrests.

DENMARK MAY NOW SELL WEST INDIAN ISLANDS

Powers That Balked Our Treaty of 1902 Are Too Busy to Interfere Again.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—A rumor is current here that this Government has reopened negotiations for the purchase of the Danish West Indies, comprising the islands of St. Thomas, Santa Cruz and St. John. Intrigues have come recently that the Danish Government, embarrassed by labor troubles on those islands, resulting in curtailing revenue and making necessary appropriations by the home Government, would not be averse to selling now.

Secretary Hay signed a treaty with Danish Minister Brun Jan. 24, 1902, transferring the islands from Denmark to the United States for $2,000,000. The United States ratified the treaty and so did one branch of the Danish Parliament. In the Senate the treaty failed of ratification by a tie vote—32 to 32.

From that date (Oct. 21, 1902) until recently there had been no official move in the matter, although from time to time certain individuals, animated, it is supposed, by the prospect of commissions for services, have made efforts to sound out both Governments and renew the negotiations.

The great European powers, which are believed to have exerted influence in the past to prevent acquisition of the islands by the United States are otherwise occupied at this moment.

JUDGE TELLS HOW HE ESCORTED MRS. VON BRINK

Took Her Home in Taxi With Friends, Hartman Says
on Stand.

Justice Crane, of the Brooklyn Supreme Court, to-day heard the answer of Judge Hartman to the accusation of Louis Van Brink, Manhattan auctioneer, who testified yesterday that the Judge escorted Mrs. Van Brink home at a very early hour in the morning and remained with her at the door for an hour and ten minutes by the watch. Van Brink is endeavoring to retain the custody of his eight-year-old daughter, Janet, who is living with his sister.

Judge Hartman said that he is Justice of a Municipal Court in Madison Street, Manhattan; that on the night of Feb. 11 he went to Belmont's to a ball. Here he met Sam Hartman, an old friend, and his wife, who introduced him to Mrs. Van Brink. They all had a bite and something to drink and went to Jack's for something more to eat. From there they went to the home of the Van Brinks, No. 445 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn.

"I handed Mrs. Van Brink out of the taxi," he said, "and opened the door of her house for her. Then I returned to the taxi where Mr. and Mrs. Hartman were waiting for me. Then we drove to the home of the Hartmans, a block or so away." The case went over until next Thursday.

INDIAN DAY MAY 13.

Gov. Whitman Calls on State to Honor First Americans.

ALBANY, May 5.—A proclamation just issued by Gov. Whitman designates May 13 as American Indian Day, "for observance by the descendants of the first Americans in memorial and honor of their forefathers." The Governor invites the attention of the citizens of the State "to the history, the social institutions of these people and especially to the present and future needs of the 5,000 reservation Indians now resident in this State."

The day will be celebrated by Indians throughout the country, but so far as known, New York is the first State officially to recognize the proposed observance.

CHAPPED HANDS A HORRIBLE SIGHT

With Blisters and Sore Eruptions.
Itching so Severe. Almost Always Bandaged.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"In the winter time my hands chapped and there appeared blisters and sore eruptions which would dry up and heal. I would scratch and it would result in bleeding and irritated hands and I could not sleep nights. The itching was so severe that my hands were swollen and inflamed and were almost always bandaged for they were a horrible sight. I was not able to put them in water. I felt very miserable. I suffered about three years. I saw Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised so I tried them and after using the first box I had relief. I am now able to do my own work after using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for about five months, and I am completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. R. Leifer, 1559 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 13, 1915.
